Home Improvement Tips

Gutter Maintenance

With rain finally making its appearance in the northwest, the time to check our home's water defense has come! Your gutter system exists to direct water away from the house. Without it, the water would be allowed to flow into unwanted areas, causing damage to lower parts of the house. This can range from mold in the walls, to more serious problems such as damage to the foundation. Because of this, gutter maintenance is crucial to your home's longevity. Taking time to keep them maintained and being quick to make repairs can as much as double the life of your drainage system.
